

Advent People in Uncertain Times

A BREAD FOR THE WORLD DEVOTIONAL

Join Us

How do we as Christians – as a community focused on advocacy – show up in a period of uncertainty? Our Advent devotional wrestles with this question. Advent, as a season of waiting and uncertainty, is an especially appropriate time to reflect on this question.

Each weekly devotional message approaches this question through the lens of the traditional Advent themes of peace, love, joy, and hope.

Michael Wear urges us to move toward God so that we might experience God's peace and take it into the world. Rev. Lori Tapia invites us to love our neighbors when political polarization makes it challenging. Rev. Heather Taylor shares a model for finding joy in darkness. And Rev. Dr. Karen Georgia Thompson reminds us that we can find hope in God's presence with us.

This devotional is appropriate for both individuals and groups. It is structured with scripture that comes from the Revised Common Lectionary, a reflection, a prayer, and a prompt for deeper reflection and discussion.

One practice that is helpful in times of uncertainty is to slow down and ground ourselves in our bodies. Take your time as you read. While the reflections are short, there is a lot packed into each of them. Every person may engage with each devotional in different ways. In group settings, you might consider building in time for stillness in silence or with musical accompaniment, discussion of the question provided or other pieces of the devotional, and prayer with the text provided and/or prayer specifically for one another.

On behalf of Bread for the World staff, we wish you a meaningful and joy-filled Advent.

Scripture

Matthew 1:18-25,

Psalms 80:1-7, 17-19

All this took place to fulfill what had been spoken by the Lord through the prophet:

"Look, the virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and they shall name him Emmanuel," which means, "God is with us."

– Matthew 1:22-23 (NRSV)

Reflection

Advent is a time and season of expectation. Great expectation. The coming of the Christ child brings mystery, hope, and signs of God's presence at work in the world.

The context in which these events took place reflected hardship for the people and for these parents. Theirs was no easy undertaking, especially when faced with an unexpected pregnancy. And yet, the hope in the story is understood in what we know, which was unknown to them: This child would change the world as they knew it.

The child's name had profound meaning then and now: Emmanuel, God with us. In these words, we find the embodiment of hope for challenging times. God is with us. The birth to come says that God is active in the world, present and prevailing in times of trouble and despair.

The Christ child entered a world where Roman occupation was causing undue distress. The poor, the orphans, and the widows – the least of these – were in great need. Taxes to support the Empire were wearing on the people, and the religious elite were focused on their power rather than the needs and suffering of the people.

The prophetic word was a promise given and received. A son would be born, to be named Jesus, one who would save the people. The advent of this child is hope incarnate, hope for the people who received and benefited from Jesus' ministry.

This season of Advent finds us holding hope for those in need. The poor need help more than ever, but government funding and support is shrinking. People and organizations are left struggling to meet the needs of the poor, to meet the needs of hungry children, to ensure that economic justice prevails for those in need.

Advent is a reminder that God is with us. We carry with us this hope that God is present and does not leave us. As people of faith, we bring with us the truth that God's presence with us makes the difference in the world. We are the hope that is needed in this moment. We become the presence of God revealed, responding to the needs of people and communities. We bring the hope that is needed to address the mission to end hunger in the world. We experience and live out this hope because we receive and believe in Emmanuel – God with us.

Digging Deeper

How can we show up with hope, as hope, in the moment when our mission to end hunger seems even more challenging?

Prayer

Dear God,

during this Advent season,
restore us.

Return us to the knowledge of your strength and power.

Call us back to you as we seek to find ways to be responsive to the needs of the poor.

O God; let your face shine,
that we all may be saved,
and experience
your love and your grace.

Guide us as we live with hope in you.

Amen.

peace

Scripture

Isaiah 2:1-5 and Psalm 122

The word that Isaiah son of Amoz saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem. In days to come the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established as the highest of the mountains, and shall be raised above the hills; all the nations shall stream to it.

Many peoples shall come and say, "Come, let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; that he may teach us his ways and that we may walk in his paths." For out of Zion shall go forth instruction, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. He shall judge between the nations, and shall arbitrate for many peoples; they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.

O house of Jacob, come, let us walk in the light of the Lord!

– Isaiah 2:1-5 (NRSV)

Digging Deeper

In a world that so desperately longs for peace, how can we be peacemakers instead of peacekeepers?

Reflection

Peace comes from the Lord. He causes the nations to change their foreign policies. While they once invested in tools to kill and destroy, they will now invest in tools to grow and nurture. The people ascend the mountain of the Lord, and everything changes!

As we begin this Advent journey, I want to pose this question:

Who are we waiting for? Really, in our heart of hearts, who or what do we think is going to intervene to bring us from where we are to where we want to go? Who are we looking to in order to teach us how to navigate our present circumstances and get to the place where we hope to arrive?

Keep your eyes on the prize. Look to the hills from where your help comes. Over and over, we are oriented in scripture toward the mountain of the Lord.

You will notice that God's people ascend the mountain, but they do not remain there. They receive instructions and are sent out to walk in the light of the Lord. They ascend the mountain seeking the Lord, and there they are changed into people of peace who walk in his light and bring that light with them.

Oh, how our world needs God's light!

This Advent, we wait on the Lord, who can teach us and change us into people of peace.

Prayer

Lord, we seek your face in this season.
The nations rage.
People are suffering.
And we know we have fallen short.
We wait on you, God.

Would you teach us your ways?
Would you help us to become more like Jesus?
Would you allow us to ascend the mountain and be changed?

Then, Lord, send us out to delight in your will and walk in your ways.
To bring your peace with us to all the places we go, to all the people we meet, so that it might spread and bless those we come across.

To the glory of your name!

Amen.

Scripture

Luke 1:46b-55,
Psalm 46:5-10

"My soul magnifies the Lord, and my spirit rejoices in God my Savior, for he has looked with favor on the lowliness of his servant. Surely, from now on all generations will call me blessed."

– Luke 1:46b-48 (NRSV)

God is in the midst of the city; it shall not be moved; God will help it when the morning dawns.

– Psalm 46:5 (NRSV)

Reflection

Mary's Magnificat in Luke 1 is a renowned song of praise in the Advent season. It is a direct response to God's prophetic word to her in a profoundly dark time.

She bursts with praise not long after Gabriel informs her that she would give birth to a son named Jesus, who would be the Son of the Most High God, inherit the throne of David, and reign forever. This timely word went against all odds – that is, everything her natural eyes and mind could reasonably comprehend in her present circumstances.

She was a virgin – physically incapable of bearing a child – living under the rule of Herod the Great, who would cease at nothing to maintain power. Yet she was told she would give birth to a new king who would reign forever. Mary not only believed this extraordinarily good news but praised God in response, recognizing that God's presence was in her midst and abided in her humility.

Christ's birth is not only a witness of God's glory, but also a reflection of our Creator's desire to send light, hope, and transformative power in the darkest of times through us as conduits if we remain humble and believe God's Word.

Neither our physical limitations nor the rulers of this world are what ultimately determine whether God's people or our world will experience an extraordinary breakthrough. Rather God's favor and our humble disposition are the determinants of how God's peace, justice, and love will manifest in and through us and prevail in uncertain times.

Digging Deeper

How might we respond with joy to God's promise of good news and seek justice in uncertain times?

Prayer

God of peace and justice, help us to exercise our faith, take comfort in your Word and believe your promises in these uncertain times.

Equip us to resist the temptation to respond to evil and darkness with unrighteous anger or pride.

Empower us to be peacemakers, embody the joy of the Lord rooted in our faith, and pierce the darkness with your abundant love.

In Jesus' name.

Amen.

love

Scripture

Romans 15:5-13,
Psalm 72:1-7, 18-19

May the God of steadfastness and encouragement grant you to live in harmony with one another, in accordance with Christ Jesus.

– Romans 15:5 (NRSV)

Give the king your justice, O God, and your righteousness to a king's son.

May he judge your people with righteousness, and your poor with justice.

– Psalm 72:1-2 (NRSV)

Reflection

As Advent people in uncertain times, the call to love becomes both a hope and a challenge. The words of Paul in Romans invite us to live in harmony, “so that with one mind and one voice you may glorify the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.”

Harmony is not just about being of one mind; it is a matter of attitude. The motivating power of harmony is love, an attitude embodied in “being love.” This is a radical call in polarized political climates where marginalization, oppression, violence, and persecution are on the rise. Still, attitude influences action, and action changes the circumstances.

Psalm 72 presents a vision of just leadership: the poor are defended, the oppressed find deliverance, and abundance is shared like rain upon mown grass. These passages challenge our polarized world, where neighbors are too often strangers, and those who hunger are too easily overlooked.

As a Latina raised in a U.S./Mexico border community, I learned early that love bridges divides and creates possibilities where only separation seemed to reign. Jesus’ call to feed the hungry is not merely a personal act; it is collective action rooted in justice, requiring us to “be love” across boundaries of politics, language, and race.

In this season of waiting, love must move us from intention to action. Love must flow through us in advocacy, hospitality, and boldly speaking the truth. Love, expressed through our tables, prayers, voices, votes, and accompaniment, becomes an agent of God’s healing and justice, especially for those hungry, exiled, or ignored. When progress seems slow, love keeps us hoping and fortifies our faith to continue advocating.

To “be love” in uncertainty means refusing to let fear or indifference direct our choices. It means showing up and embodying Christ’s love in communities, around tables, at physical and societal borders, in war zones, and in places of power, carrying a persistent hope that love prevails. As we await the fulfillment of God’s promise, may our love serve as bridgework for justice and nourishment for those in need.

Digging Deeper

In a political climate that is polarized, how might we show up with love to build bridges?

Prayer

God of abundant love, in Christ,
you call us into one body, united by your Spirit and charged to serve all hungry in body, heart, or spirit.

Awaken us in this Advent season to the power of love that heals wounds, upends injustice, and makes strangers family.

Give us courage to cross divides and wisdom to see your image in every neighbor.

Empower us, O Lord,
to be bridge-builders and bread-bearers,
so that your reign of justice and peace may break forth, especially for those who hunger.

Let your unfailing love be the root of our words and the fruit of our deeds.

Amen.

About Us

At Bread for the World, our mission is to educate and equip people to advocate for policies and programs that can help end hunger. Our faith in Christ is the foundation of our efforts and compels us to love our neighbors near and far. There are more than 700 million people experiencing hunger around the world every day.

Not only are people in need of food, but there's a global hunger for justice, equity, and security.

This is why our work is grounded in the hope that Christ's arrival brings and is inspired by God's redemptive love.
